

Robust and sustainable security for a vacant site

Background

First Connect Fire & Security, a security systems installation and maintenance company trading in East Anglia for over 20 years, was responsible for securing a vacant site in Norwich. Already benefitting from a working relationship with Clearway, they requested our assistance, and one of our team attended the site to carry out a survey and recommend the most suitable and cost-effective security measures.

Solution

Based on our recommendations, 3 x inView solar-powered, mobile CCTV towers were rapidly deployed and installed to provide unbroken surveillance across the whole site without the need for mains power or phone line. The site now also benefit from 24/7/365 Remote monitoring from our in-house NSI Gold Cat II Accredited Alarm Receiving Centre (ARC) where professionally trained operatives can rapidly analyse any activations and respond accordingly.

Key Benefits

-  Mobile and solar-powered technology
- no need for power to site
-  Rapid deployment and installation
-  24/7/365 Remote monitoring

Design & Installation of Fire & Security Systems

3 x inView solar-powered, mobile CCTV towers were rapidly deployed and installed to provide unbroken surveillance across the whole site without the need for mains power or phone line.

Outcome

The effectiveness of the CCTV towers with remote monitoring was proven shortly afterwards when activations were received from towers on-site early one evening. Surveillance showed two masked individuals who proceeded to break into the property and climb onto the roof. Operatives at our ARC swiftly contacted Norfolk Police who were despatched to site, the designated keyholder was also contacted and arrived at the building.

Fifteen minutes after being contacted police officers were in attendance on site and twelve minutes later the individuals had been detained.

The client was extremely pleased with the effectiveness of the security solutions provided, Clearway's rapid response and communication throughout the incident, and the desired outcome for all concerned.
